U.S. Hiring Slowdown Hits Stocks, Fuels Bets on Bigger Rate Cut

America is still adding jobs, but no longer at a red-hot pace. That sent markets into a tailspin Friday, with the Dow Jones Industrial Average sliding more than 600 points. Job growth slowed sharply in July and the unemployment rate rose to its highest level since 2021, the Labor Department reported. The data adds to evidence that a labor market whose strength was already fading could actually be on its way to weakness. Read More.

Culture Counts in The Industrial Workplace

All too often, conversations about the industrial workplace focus only on safety and regulatory compliance rather than employee satisfaction and attraction. While safety and compliance are paramount, industrial settings also convey larger messages about a corporate brand and culture — just like office workplaces — and demand investments and improvements to attract and retain quality talent.
